RELOCATION

DITCH THE STATES!

Where to go when America's Most Wanted runs your mugshot

Should anyone ever discover that you're secretly uninterested in NASCAR, your U.S. citizenship will be revoked and you'll be deported for being an American—that's if you beat the treason rap. So, where do you go? That all depends on what you're after.

GET OLD IN ANDORRA

Want to live to see your chestnuts hang past your knees? Head to Andorra, the minuscule nation nearly half the size of New York City sandwiched between Spain and France. According to the CIA's World Factbook, Andorran men live the longest: 80.6 years, compared to only 74.9 in the U.S. Need another reason to relocate? No taxes.

STOP WORKING IN NAURU

Unemployed? Move to Nauru, where it isn't your fault you can't find a job. This tiny island nation in the South Pacific was once rich in phosphate exports, but they've since mined the shit out of it and no longer have any phosphate to speak of—or an economy, for that matter. Today, 90 percent of Nauruans are out of work.

In Nauru, it isn't your fault you can't find a job

BE PROSPEROUS IN LUXEMBOURG

Earn more without working harder! If you can forgive this Rhode Island-sized country for bordering France, you'll enjoy the world's highest gross-national-income: $58,900 per worker. At $40,100, the U.S. is No. 2, but that's only because our president gets a kick out of saying, "number two."

DRINK IN THE CZECH REPUBLIC

Surrounded by lightweights? According to a study published in World Drink Trends, the average man in the Czech Republic downs 41.5 gallons of beer per year—20 more than the typical American. The only explanation can be that there's far too much learning happening inside U.S. frat houses.

DRIVE FOR FREE IN SWITZERLAND

Bad credit? No credit? No problem! A new ride awaits you in the land of Nazi loot—if you remember to pack a lock jimmy. With 8.9 out of every 1,000 Swiss autos jacked, the U.N. lists Switzerland as the stolen-car capital of the world. In the U.S., only 4.3 out of every 1,000 cars gets gone in 60 seconds.

TOOLS

BLACKOUT ASSISTANCE

Science's latest methods for getting blotto

Conceal it!

$50; www.thebeerbelly.com

The Beerbelly is an 80-ounce bladder you strap on with a bra-like sling. "You can cut the hose to any length," says co-creator Brooks Lambert. "I run it out my zipper and into my cup." A foolproof ruse, unless you wear a catheter.

Pound it!

$15; www.bottleblaster.com

Hoover the contents of any longneck in three seconds with the Bottle Blaster. "Novices may experience some gas," warns company president Bob Tinning. "With practice, it won't bother you." If only the same were true for burritos.

Share it!

$100; www.ubertap.com

The Uber Tap is a three-headed suds dispenser that fits on any keg. "The average tap fills four 12-ounce beers per minute," says inventor Jamie Moriarty. "The Uber Tap fills 11.25." Or, half the pace at which Nick Nolte empties them.
